

KNIGHTSBRIDGE WEALTH MANAGEMENT
Client Relationship Summary (Form CRS) - June 30, 2020

Our firm is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission as a registered investment adviser (RIA). Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ and it is important for you to understand the differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS. This site also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

We provide discretionary investment advisory and management services to retail investors (clients) through individually managed accounts. When you grant us discretionary authority, we determine the investments to buy or sell in your account on an ongoing basis. We work with you to identify your investment goals without checking with you first. We perform regular, periodic reviews which include monitoring the performance of investments in your account. We also offer financial planning advice as a courtesy to clients. We do not limit the scope of our investment advisory services to proprietary products or a limited group or type of investments. We generally invest the accounts of clients with similar goals in a similar fashion. Our minimum total investment is typically $250,000 but sometimes we make exceptions.

Questions to ask your financial advisor:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education, and other qualification? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will I pay?

Knightsbridge receives a fee as compensation for providing advisory services on your account. The investment management fee is assessed quarterly and includes portfolio design and construction, security selection, trade entry, and other account maintenance and/or service activities. In addition, your custodian may also charge transaction costs, custodial fees, redemption fees and administrative fees or commissions; ETFs or mutual funds will charge an additional management fee.

We offer multiple fee arrangements to our clients. Generally, our investment management fees are based on a percentage of the total account value. We also have a Wrap Fee program under which we generally charge a higher fee, but then we cover any trading, custodial, or other fees that would usually be borne by the client. Clients are billed either in advance or arrears, depending on the arrangement. The more assets in your advisory account, the more you will pay in fees, and therefore, we have an incentive to encourage you to increase the assets in your account as well as an incentive to increase this value via prudent investment selection. We also offer an incentive fee program, in which we charge fees only as a percentage of the account's gain in value. Your specific fee arrangement will be outlined in your investment management contract with us that you sign.

Unless you enroll in the incentive fee program, you will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please understand what fees and costs you are paying.

Questions to ask your financial advisor:

- Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment advisor? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we act as your investment advisor, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means. We have an incentive to increase your assets under management with us and thus might recommend rollovers out of employer-sponsored retirement plans and into Individual Retirement Accounts that we manage, which would have the effect of increasing our compensation. Our firm also allows employees to trade in their personal accounts and may invest in the same securities as clients following approval from our Chief Compliance Officer. Our employees are required to follow a Code of Conduct and their personal securities accounts are supervised on an ongoing basis.

For more information refer to our firm's ADV part 2A brochure – items 11 and 12

Question to ask your financial advisor:

- How do your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?

Our financial professionals are generally compensated based on their ownership of the firm and the profits it generates. One financial professional instead receives consulting income and compensation based on the amount of revenue that certain accounts associated with that professional generate. The main conflict of interest presented by this arrangement is that financial professionals are incentivized to increase the assets and revenues of the firm. Thus, we might recommend our clients not make extravagant purchases.

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

No. No financial professional or employee has any legal or disciplinary history.
